KITTY OF CLOVERDALE.

As beautiful Kitty one morning was tripping,

With a pectoral of milk, from the fair of Cob-ras.

When she saw me she stumbled, the pectoral it

tumbled,

And all the sweet butter-milk watered the plain.

"What shall I do now?" Thus looking at me

Says, "sure, stick a pitchfork! I'll never meet again!"

"Take the pride of my diary," O. Bamer

"McCarty."

Once more a plague in the girls of Cloverdale!

I sat down beside her, and she did what she could to make her smile, though she was indeed very ill.

"Two such making passes—I can't tell the reason."

Madame will never come single, 'tis plain."

For very soon after poor Kitty's disaster

The devil's picture was white in Cloverdale
